NEW-YORK, SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 10, 1841

THE THADE.—The Evening Post, in attempting to agree a Report from the American Institute, has distinctly REMARKABLE ESCAPE.—We mentioned a few days since eories which, though put forth in our public journals | we have ever seen recorded. and advocated with eloquence and plausibility, would unand advocated with eloquence and plausibility, would unhinge completely all our National prosperity if effectually
the Iron Colounade buildings Cliff stret, corner of John, where they will endeavor constantly to keep a full assortment of the followcarried into practice. Let the European nation a secure to their own people the home market for their own munufacares and make the United States the ready vent for their urplus and their refuse, and our ingenious fabricators might as well calculate on the wind as on any uniformity of prices. The capitalist of this country might as well throw his money to the ocean as vest it in manufacturing establishments. The rewards for ingenuity derived from capital, which are the direct means of promoting industry and ingenuity, would be withheld; improvements in Manufactures and the Arts would retrograde. There is a vast amount of the products of foreign pauper labor and fabrics of almost all varieties, not only from paupers, but from prisons, with which the prison labor of this country is but as a drop in the bucket, that would come pouring in upon us. Even the insignificant mount of fabrics made by a few workmen in our State Pristomplaints have been made. The newspaper press has often spoken in terms pointed and strong. The cruelty of sacrificing honest, industrious men and distressing innocent families, to put a few dollars into the trensury of the State, has been dwelt upon by Editors in language that breathed philagraphy of the State in the state of the state is a state of the state in the state of the state in the state of the state is a state of the state in the state of the state is a state of the state in the state of the state is a state of the state of the state is a state of the state of the state is a state of the state of t lanthropy. 'Buy where you can buy the cheapest' is not contended for when American State Prison fabrics come in

If manufacturing in our Prisons is calculated actually to prostrate some of our best citizens and drive them from their endes and break up their occupations, we never hear it de fended because we have uncultivated lands to which they may resort; but, to favor John Bull, our citizens must seek the wilderness, and thence derive their subsistence. We do not hear it claimed on behalf of the consumer, if the State Prison tailor can make a coat cheaper than the honest miler, and at the same time benefit the Treasury of the State, that therefore the consumer has a right to the advantages of his labor; but every day we hear it said, "Why should I be compelled to buy a domestic coat for a high price, when I ranget an English coat for a less sum?" The case is much ist, because the profit of his labor goes into the Treasury, and is therefore for the benefit of all the citizens of the State; and secondly, all the money paid for the State Prison coat which does not go into the Treasury is expended for ment, four, butter, cheese, potatoes, &c. to feed the State Prison tailor, and for materials to clothe him. This encourages the growers of provisions, garden vegetables, &c. The foreign tailor will take scarcely any of these articles, because he is prehibited by the laws of foreign countries from purchasing the leading staple articles; and many of the other articles cannot, from their perishable nature, be transported. Every cent paid the American tailor will therefore remain in the country, and be applied in encouraging some other occupation or business, giving activity to other employments and augmenting general production. To the country, in many cases, it makes the difference of the whole cost of the article whether it is produced at home or abroad.

The indvocates of what they call Free Trade say that labor may be diverted and flourish in new occupations. The answer to that is, when there are a great variety of employments, some among them are adapted to the circumstances of each and all. Manufactures employ women, children and the infirm. Their labor would amount to little or nothing if manufactures were to cease. From habit, genius, education. an some are calculated to be useless in society except in some particular calling. In a society abounding with vafists occupations, almost every individual may employ more at less spare time in productive labor. The aggregate value of all that is carned by the labor thus employed, will in a few years form a vast amount of wealth. The value of all the cotton fabrics made in the United States would undoubtedly equal every year thirty millions of dollars, after deducting the cost of raw cotton. Threefourths of the manual labor required for this production is performed by women and children, infirm persons, &c. whose earnings in agriculturo would amount to little or nothing. But, suppose only one half is clear gain to the country; in ten years it would amount to one hundred and tity millions of dollars. This is a saving calculated on only My one-eighth of ull the manufactures of the country-the unual total, when in full operation, being estimated at about four hundred millions of dollars. If only half the amount a saved in other branches of manufacturing, which etherwise would not be saved, it would in ten years amount to the enormous sum of six hundred millions of dollars. Short-sighted interested free trade advocates talk about the adaptedness of our population and country to agriculture. We will give them three mouths to make their enquiries and examinations, on the whole globe's circumference where even thirty milloss of dollars' worth of agricultural products would, with by reasonable probability, be disposed of. Europe, in ordin-lions of dollars. We then should have to raise from other sources to equal our annual wants and to purchase manufacplayed in agriculture, if properly stimulated, by adopting the

SELF-PROTECTORS, TO TRAVELLERS AND HOUSE-KEEPERS.

SELF-PROTECTOR-We were much gratified yesterday by seeing a Pocket Pistol, perfectly simple in its construction, and at the same time effective. It was of a portable shape, and could be discharged six times in a few seconds. By pulling the trigger only it would cock and discharge at the same time. The objection heretofore against the Repeating Arms was their intricate complication of machinery, which made them liable to get out of repair, and some times dangerous to use. But this Pistol is certainly the best weapon of defence we have ever seen. The Self-Protector or Contingent Friend can be seen by calling at Bolen's, 164 Broadway.
